OBITUARY

The subject of this sketch, Mrs. Nancy E. Friel was born and raised in Pocahontas County in the neighborhood now known as Clawson. At the age of 21 years she was united in marriage to B. W. Wilson, formerly of Highland County, Va., after which they lived in and near the vicinity of her birth. To this union were born three children, two sons and one daughter, Oliver E. Wilson of Mill Point, J. N. Wilson of Morgantown and Mrs. Minnie M. Kelley of Bath County, Va. She also became the foster mother of and raised Fred Lightner, now of Richmond, Va.

On account of feeble health she and her husband broke up house-keeping near Mill Point last fall and went to live with their daughter, Mrs. Kelley, where they resided at the time of her death, which occurred on Jan. 2, 1922 due to the infirmities of old age. Her remains were brought to the home of her brother, Jasper Friel and funeral services were conducted in the Clawson church by Rev. John Perry, after which her body was laid to rest in the Clawson cemetery in the presence of a large crowd of sorrowing relatives and friends to await the great morning of the Resurrection.

She is survived by her husband and children, one brother and a host of friends, for to know her was to love her. She was a kind and affectionate wife and mother and bore her afflictions without a complaint patiently to the end.

At the time of her death she was 72 years 6 months and 17 days old. The pains of death are past, Labor and sorrow cease, And life's long warfare closed at last Her soul is found in peace.

IT IS NICE TO BE NICE

A lot of nice parents have failed to bring up nice children. They have dodged telling them certain Essential Facts. The doctors used to do considerable dodging, but not these days. Every family practitioner of medicine has a civic duty to perform. So has every citizen, and especially each parent.

The best preventative of blindness is a study of its cause. Every other evil can be prevented in the same way. Nothing can be more pathetic than some of the results of ignorance. Infant mortality in the United States is a disgrace to the country. Some people go almost crazy when birth control is mentioned. They want as many babies as possible to be born, and let them die. It should not be a matter of more babies, but better babies. On the other hand we should not concern ourselves so much about the number of babies born each year, but about the ones that die. Eugenics is a beautiful theory, but as a fact we want it applied to the other fellow.

The "Holler than thou" attitude is carried to extremes. We should put on glasses when we look in the mirror.

The venereal diseases are too vulgar to be talked about. We are too nice. It is nice to be nice, but it can be overdone-U. S. Public Health Service.

"YOUR TEETH"

Occlusion

By Res Proctor McGee, D. D. S., M. D. Editor "Oral" Hygiene.

Occlusion means the fitting together of the upper and lower teeth when the mouth is closed.

In the normal mouth the upper teeth extend slightly over the lower teeth all around. Each upper tooth strikes two lower teeth and each lower tooth strikes two upper teeth.

This arrangement sets upon the principle of a shock absorber. Every tooth has a slight motion independent of the other teeth. When the jaws come together the teeth move a little and escape the jar.

All bodily movements are due to the muscles pulling upon the bones according to the well known mechanical principles of the different forms of levers.

If the muscles of your arm worked upon the same lever plan that the muscles of your jaw work upon, you could throw a horse over a six-foot fence without much trouble.

This means that there is an immense pressure upon your teeth when you chew.

A soldier completely equipped for field service makes a pressure of eleven pounds to the square inch upon the ground when he walks.

The human jaws in a normal man can exert a pressure of two hundred and fifty pounds to the square inch.

The lower jaw moves up and down, from side to side, back and forth, and it also has a rotary movement. If any tooth is out of its proper position in the arch, it is very liable to receive the whole pressure of the jaws in some of these movements and the constant jarring that it receives will start an inflammation in the pericementum—the membrane that covers the root of the tooth and attaches it to the bone.

The same thing happens when a filling is too high, and sometimes when a tooth has been extracted the tooth on either side will move a little into the vacant space and cause one or more to strike too hard.

This is called traumatic occlusion and is the cause of many cases of death of the nerve, alveolar abscess, pulp stones, enlargement of the end of the root, called exostosis, and pyorrhea.

If a tooth is slightly tender or seems to be in the way, a visit to the dentist will save a great deal of trouble.

One thing is certain, a tooth never hurts or even feels queer unless there is something the matter. There may be sham pains in other parts of the body, but whenever anyone tells you that his teeth hurt they do.

At the request of a reader of this paper, we are reprinting this communication from the Philadelphia Record: Editor of The Record:

"Please allow a few American sailors who have just returned from a year's duty in European waters to express their opinions and views on our own American girls and women. In Europe the girl and woman of questionable character is pointed out by the following freakish characteristics: First, bobbed hair. Second, short skirts, heavy use of rouge and tattooed beauty marks. We were thunderstruck and dumbfounded upon our return to our own United States to find our American girls and women walking fac similes of the European type of questionable character. If you girls and women only could realize how disgusting this new fad of dressing you would get under cover until the fashion changes—and we are far from Sunday school boys after a year in Europe. We have all visited 17 different countries in our year abroad, and I dare say without fear of contradiction that the feminine sex today in America is wearing the garb of Europe's lowest women. I would like any civilian who has been in Europe recently to say if I am not right. Constantinople and Alexandria, Egypt, supposed to be the two wickedest cities in the world, cannot equal the sights seen by us since our return to Philadelphia.

"Mothers, if you could only see and realize the point that I am driving at when your daughter asks your permission to have her hair bobbed show her this article. And on the other hand, if the fashion fad gets the best of you, stop and think of this article and how you appear in public to those who have been abroad recently. And if your daughter returns home and says that she has been annoyed by a sailor, show her this article again. Since our return to the States we have not been fortunate enough to secure a furrough as yet, nevertheless we have vowed that when we do get home, and we find our sisters or mothers masquerading as Europe's women of ill fame, they can count us out as relatives until the fashion changes.

"It is a mystery to me how a lady or girl can walk the streets without being approached by any man. Only the other day, en route from the Navy Yard to a theatre at Philadelphia, two members of the gentle sex sat opposite me in the car. One was about 50, I judge, and the other not a day over 14 years of age. According to the poor blending of cosmetics of both, they managed to make up like mother and daughter. If the painted ladies of Constantinople could have seen this blending of cosmetics they would resolve to return to the army of workers instead of the life that those of that make up live. Beaded eyelashes, penciled eyebrows, rouged lips and cheeks, tattooed beauty marks, and last but not least, the disgusting skirts, which I imagine are very warm and comfortable during cold weather—not. Now we are not boys just out of school or serving minority enlistments, but range in age from 20 to 35 years. So you can see how you are being judged. Enroute to the States we visited the ruins of Pompeii, while at Naples, Italy. After listening to our guide, it brought to the writers mind the earthquake at San Francisco and the causes for the destruction of these two cities. Now, I am laboring under the impression that if all of the good old U. S. A. has gone European fashion mad, the same as what I have seen these few days in Philadelphia, prepare yourselves for another disaster.
